

Jadis, Daylight Fades

Wait for the storm to carry the fishermen home
Pray for a silent day
I'm just one of the millions
Who live forever
Can I be wrong
You feel so helpless
You feel like letting go

Daylight fades as the pages turn
Will I lose my place, will I ever learn?
Does the crying end when I leave a friend?
Will the warmth of my heart run colder?

Trees left without rain
I'll watch the sun rise for them
Leaves caught in a breeze
I'll watch the sun rise for them
All of this time I'm standing so high on a hillside
I'll stay to the daytime ends

Daylight fades as the pages turn
Will I lose my place, will I ever learn?
Does the crying end when I leave a friend?
Will the warmth of my heart run colder?
