Jairus, Ara Pacis

Its not the fear of seeing new days, but its the fear of seeing your eyes full of august promises and september curses and helping your hands with wayward stabbings flick throw these matches ill ignite and rise to dress you in flames and reel around your ashes in cowardice speak her name tear this writing from this page and watch me claim this crime bring gasolline ill do the murders