

James Gang, I Don't Have The Time

I don't have the time to play your silly games
Walk to work each morning, live within a frame
Now you're trying to tell me I should be like you
Watch your time, work nine to five, what good does it do?

I'm not fond of laughing with your shallow friends
I don't feel like changing just so I'll fit in Things are more important than how you look or feel
Just cause I don't look like you don't mean I can't read

Spend some time and listen, think what you may think
Form your own opinion, find your missing link
Through the situation, you may find it's right
We must stick together, man's not made to fight
