

James Young, Heart's Not The Same

Looking back through the hourglass
You and me had the future in our hands
I always saw the two of us strong together
But we can't hold the shifting sands
Now it breaks me down to lose you
But I don't know any other way

'Cause your heart's not the same
Something inside has turned around the bend
And you're hearing that lonely voice call
Through all of your changes
And everything we tried to get it back again
I know that I have to let you go

It's crystal clear in the looking glass
I see myself through different eyes
Haunted by the memory of loving you
And listening to the echo of goodbye
Well there's a time and place for every dream
And darling ours just slipped away

'Cause your heart's not the same
Something inside has turned around the bend
And you're hearing that lonely voice call
Through all of your changes
And everything we tried to get it back again
I know that I have to let you go

Your heart's not the same, there's no one to blame
Your heart's not the same anymore
Your heart's not the same, something has changed
I see you now through different eyes
Your heart's not the same anymore

I think of you wondering why it has to be this way
Hoping it won't always feel so hard to lose you