

Jan Howard, It's Over

If time were not a moving thing and I could make it stay this hour
The love we share will always be there'll be no coming day
To shine a morning light make us realize all night is over
When you walk away from me there is no place to put my hand
Except to shade my eyes against the sun that rises over land
I watch you walk away somehow I have to let you go now it's over
If you knew just how I really feel you might be turning yet
There are so many times that people have to love and then forget
There might have been a way somehow I have to force myself to say it's over

So I turn my back and turn my collar to the wind
Move along in silence trying not to think at all
I send my feet before me walk the silence street before me now it's over
It's over oh it's over yes it's over
