

Jaromir Nohavica, Magdalene

Dont you cry Magdalene please wait for me
I wanted to offer a shoulder to lean
A road waits ahead through a thicket of thorns
If I left you behind Id rather never be born
Just a shirt on by back and the coat that you wear
We're lost from the start on this journey we bear
Two stars brightly shining all through the night
The good Lord has left us to our own plight
Please hold my hand through this wintery day
Nothing is easy thats coming our way
Who else could know this better the we
Thrown in the darkness both you and me
The ships sailed away, birds southbound have flown
He without sin let him cast the first stone
Both Love and Truth to our world was once shown
But those who have look at them turned into stone
I am your lover and you are my bride
All that we lived on this road we abide
Should never be pondered my love cant you see
Two hungry wolves lurking behind an oak tree
Two hungry wolves lurking with scares on their face
They're two angels banned from the heavenly gates
Theyre silent within their hunger is strong
Only I dare to love you all my life long
You are the only one to meant next to me
Ill start you a fire from dry leaves and weeds
When the flames start to burn and coals start to glow
Ill be faithfull to you and youll be my own.
I will climb up above to the crown of a tree
The light of the moon shines on both you and me
Through gorges and holes and uneven land
We look at the grace that above our heads stands
Through gorges and holes and uneven land
