Jars Of Clay, Waiting For The World

I'm afraid it's been too long to try to find the reasons why I let my world close in around a smaller patch of fading sky But now I've grown beyond the walls to where I've never been And it's still winter in my wonderland

[Chorus:]

I'm waiting for the world to fall I'm waiting for the scene to change I'm waiting when the colors come I'm waiting to let my world come undone

I close my eyes and try to see the world unbroken underneath The farther off and already it just might make the life I lead A little more than make-believe when all my skies are painted blue

And the clouds don't ever change the shape of who I am to You

[Chorus:]

I'm waiting for the world to fall
I'm waiting for the scene to change
I'm waiting when the colors come
I'm waiting to let my world come undone

When I catch the light of falling stars my view is changing me My view is changing me

I'm waiting...