Jason Mraz, 0% Interest

Well our friends on the front porch, Where they're telling jokes and they swing on, Swiftly towards happier times They're expending the lines And finding more energy for the effort And getting distance from that front porch spotlight But us, we found peace in the shadows Long enough to see the monsters rise Candy's got some space to fill in her daydreams Living high on yesterday's lies Talking to me about some 0% interest And how she got a better deal than the next guy And the way the lightning shocked us, When we were lost and we were looking Down that long missouri highway Your hair was longer then and now I can remember See, now well i remember oh, so well Oh, the roads unencumbered by cats They're burning like wet matches through my miracle mile mind You left your thumbprint inside me now for months it seems But mine only brushes your soft surface And somehow, somehow it leaves me listless, My tongue curls under my lips, oh yes So I cant speak to tell you of the months before I met you And the way the truth it locked us Right about the time after the lightning shocked us When we were young, when we were young and missing Round that small new england byway Our lives they were sheltered then And I now I can remember Say now, i remember so well Almost too well Well its not even being about that anymore I gotta get you down Those tiny fragments of perfection, they please me in a time Unchanged, when its not the same beginning Or along awaited end If I knew all the words, I would write myself out of here If I was all the colors, I would paint you pretty in gold in a picture So I'm told little sister So now I'm sold little sister Why don't you tell me about the sunsets in sweden, And the laws of eden And how you were the rock of gibraltar, And how they called you foxy Well that's another whole box of pandoras, That's another whole box of them ties Slide your foot off the gas Before we crash right back into the median Right back into the median, the median It separates our house From the middle of the street It separates our house On the middle of the street