

Jason Mraz, Stranger In The Sky (Make Believe)

Who are we, we're told to toil at mouth
Now louder answers the firmest fist and kisses
Ask me again
How game show season never ends
The same old reason I won't win
Suspended in this animation
I could use a new vacation
Aimlessly the nameless and the faceless go to make up
Tell me I'm spending too much time on happy endings
And my life does not rely on how much love you might be lending me
Above there's so much I'm depending on, remembering more instead
You send me door to door to have the family cat attack the strangers back by popular demand, stand as you were Before you saw your parting gift in stores
You poured your empty heart in it but finished what you started
When you practiced and rehearsed
To find your God before He finds first In dirty words and poison dreams like girls who flirt while boys are teens
They're only asking for one thing
It's never only make believe to me

Tell me I'm spending too much time on happy endings
And my life does not rely on how much love you might be lending me Above there's so much I'm depending on, remembering more instead of war with me, myself and I;
I'm headed for the stranger in the sky
Resort in Paradise
Now louder answer the wish and kiss bids goodbye
