

Jason Upton, Burning In The Sky

You've been too long upon this mountain
It's time you journey to the sea
Sometimes to trust in your false comfort
Is easier than trusting me
Some men only believe in what their eyes can see
Some men only believe in what their minds conceive

But believings like conceiving
This child that were receiving
A gift beyond our reason
It's more of what we need, and less of what we know
It calls not to our mind, but cries out to our soul

That mountains burning in the sky
To the heart of heaven
Without the fire we'll never fly
To the heart of heaven
Can you hear God's holy cry
From the heart of heaven
Lay it all down
Lay it all down
Lay it all down
For the heart of heaven
