

Jean Michel Jarre, Exit (ft. Edward Snowden)

Technology can actually increase privacy

The question is:

Why our private details that are transmit online

Why our private details that are store on our personal devices

Any different

And details and private records which they are store in out private journals

I think, you know

Saying that you don't care about the right to privacy because you have nothing to hide is no different

It's a deeply anti-social principle, because rights are not just individual, they're collective.

What may not have value to you today, may have value to an entire population, an entire people, or

And if you don't stand up for it, then who will?

And if you don't stand up for it, then who will?

And if you don't stand up for it, then who will?

And if you don't stand up for it, then who will?