

Jean Shepard, Who In The World

Who in the world would believe we are parting when we always got along so well
Who in the world would believe you are leaving when I can't believe it myself

Who in the world could believe you would hurt me
When I've always treated you so good
Who in the world could understand the reason I only wish that I could
Who in the world would believe that it's over when we've been together all this time
And who in the world would believe if I told them that you're no longer mine
Who in the world would believe...
