

Jean Shepard, You're Telling Me Sweet Lies Aga

I thought any fool could be fooled only once that a burn child remembers the pain
Yet here I am listening with stars in my eyes you're telling me sweet lies again
They're tender and soothing like a kiss to my heart I know that is healing in vain
The wound will be deepen you'll say we must part you're telling me sweet lies again [ steel ]

Let some angel or parry come rescue my heart
Wave the one to change my fate that's so plain
I'm lost in a transe or a spell I can't break you're telling me sweet lies again
They sound so familiar like a book read before I know that the ending's the same
Some magic is holding me spell bound once more you're telling me sweet lies again