

Jeff Van Dyck, We Are All One

I know you fight for God and you believe it's right to risk your home, your life, to face the evil night.
But in the darkest night, when our children are asleep,
I think about the families of our enemy.

Do they feel the same believing their own truth?
They must love their children as fiercely as we do.
We all share one thing: our hearts were given from above and the only thing worth fighting for in this world is love.

On and on through the years the war continues on why can't we see the truth - we are all one.

On and on through the years the war continues on on and on through the years - we are all one.
