

Jennifer Chung, White Lies

I started thinking about yesterday,
And all the plans that we had made
Wanted so bad to talk to you
But I knew what I had to do.
I put down the phone and let it go
'Cause I knew that my voice would reveal my soul.
I tossed & turned 'till I fell asleep
Hoping you would meet me in my dreams.
You bruised my heart
Nothing's broken it's just done
of having careless complications,
teaching itself to become numb
It's afraid to feel
'Cause what it once thought was real
Was a false note prettied w/designs.
They were all just white lies.
What came so fast left as easily
Though we tried to work things carefully.
Intentions were good we had our fun
but for the best said that we were done
No one even knew what we were up to
But how could they understand what was me and you?
When I don't even know for sure myself.
This song is my cry for help.
You bruised my heart
Nothing's broken it's just done
of having careless complications,
teaching itself to become numb
It's afraid to feel
'Cause what it once thought was real
Was a false note prettied w/designs.
They were all just white lies.
I was never yours,
You were never mine.
When we met it wasn't right.
The stars never aligned.
It was time for you to go.
It was the middle of May
We both knew it was coming,
You were never meant to stay.
You bruised my heart
Nothing's broken it's just done
of having careless complications
teaching itself to become numb
It's afraid to feel
'Cause what it once thought was real
Was a false note prettied w/designs.
They were all just white lies.