

Jennifer Warnes, Cold Enough To Snow

Where did summer go?
How'd I miss the change of seasons
All at once the wind blows rough
It's cold enough to snow

In the street below
People laugh, they got no reason
Don't they know its cold enough to snow?

When we were together
And you were staying
Funny but the weather still
Felt like May in mid-December
Now the chill winds blow
Sunny skies they're only teasing
You won't show its cold enough to snow

On the radio there's a man saying
Ain't it freezing
What's he know? He didn't watch you go.

No the sun can't shine, fine
But its cold enough to snow
