

Jens Johansson, Fading Away

you took away my sense of destiny, we laughed away so many days too many miles apart to keep it real, we had to go our separate ways fading away, fading away, we saw the light together, but now you fade away

I thought that life is either black or white, the truth is somewhere in between

fading away, fading away, we saw the
light together, but now you fade away