Jens Lekman, Erica America

Erica America

Fremont street lies empty A cleaning vehicle drew a line across my camera?s lens I whispered our names: ?Erica and Jens?

Erica America They demolished a frontier casino And the day after the air smelled like popcorn and ladies' perfume Sinatra had his shit figured out, I presume

Erica America Summer never ends here I said to myself, as if that would make things better Summer is exhausting me with its exhaust fumes and empty promises And promises of no more empty promises

Erica America I wish I?d never met you Like I wish I?d never tasted wine Or tasted it from lips that weren?t mine Now, every drop tastes more bitter all the time

Erica America

Erica America I wish I?d never met you Like I wish I?d never tasted wine Or tasted it from lips that weren?t mine
