

Jerry Cantrell, I've Seen All This World I Care To

I close my eyes and watch the darkness
Withdraw to my world of make believe
This world is filled with so much sorrow
And I've seen all this world I care to see

I watch as castles fall around me
From crumbled ruins of my own
This world is filled with much unhappiness
So many people so alone

Seeds that thrive in loveless gardens
Fruits of such will bitter be
Fields of hate and greed surround me
And I've seen all this world I care to see
