

JESS GLYNNE, No One

Swimming in the deep end With nowhere to go
My body's on the journey And my mind can't let go I'm falling into nothing Tell me what's left to lose Fore I knew where I was going
And now I know I need you

they say you're no one until you're somebody to someone
till someone misses you when you're gone and now I feel like I've let you down it's me now who's reaching now I can't do this on my own because you're no one

when I hit the ground running trying not to give in every step is a hurtle don't know where I begin hold my mind wide open when lonely is the truth thought I knew where I was going
and now I know I need you

till someone misses you when you're gone
and now I feel like I've let you down

if I came home all back down of I have no one else around would you be there to pull me up will I be that somebody to you? please tell me, please tell me now
could I be that somebody to you? to you, to you, to you
could I be that somebody to you?
