

Jessica Riddle, Can't See

I met a man today and you don't even know it.
You're busy celebrating the freedom that you found.
I know you ran away but you don't want to see it.
You cut my heart in two, right through without a sound.
Without a sound.

Oh, I should know better
than to float out this deep

I met a man that thought that all my jokes were funny.
You're too busy talking to pick up the other line.
You're doing fine without my voice to tuck you in when you're without me.
And you don't feel the same but who's to blame your heart or mine?
Yours or mine?

Oh, I should know better
than to float out this deep.
My eyes are so filled with water
That I can't see.

I met a man that gave me all of his attention.
You're too busy contemplating what you think you feel.
Why do you steal the life within me without any compensation?
But i couldn't help but think of you whenever he was near.
Is that love or fear?

Oh, I should know better
than to float out this deep.
My eyes are so filled with water
That I can't see.