

Jill Sobule, Now That I Don't Have You

I have hope, now that I don't have you
I have faith, now that I'm alone
I'm not bashing my head against the wall
I'm not waiting forever for your call
I'm not wasting time
Now that I don't have you

Now that I don't have you
Maybe someday I'll love as others do
And fall for someone who's half as cruel
Now that I don't have you

I have dreams, not that you're not lying next to me
I can sleep, I can rest in peace
I'm not tossing and turning on your bed of nails
I'm not burning up like I'm in hell
I can sleep
Now that I don't have you

Now that I don't have you
Maybe someday I'll love as others do
And wake up one morning to skies of blue
But I won't be with you
Now that I don't have you
Maybe someday I'll love as others do
And fall for someone who's sad but true
Now that I don't have you
