

joan, God, You've Never Drowned The Place

I lost my quiet ground
When one step became habit
Swimming in sacred source
I've never drowned like that

The clue to fate I found
I held that harder than your hand
I cared about this find
It was like a God's sign

You've never drowned The Place
You always took care of
You loved to see our happiness
When we felt so free

You've never drowned The Place
You always took care of
You loved to see our happiness
When we were reappearing there again

The moment when you touch sand
The moment when you touch grass
And the one and only peacefulness
Gives you the darkness of the ocean

It's the other first time
For ten long years
To my child's maturity
I came back here again

You've never drowned The Place
You always took care of
You loved to see our happiness
When we felt so free

You've never drowned The Place
You always took care of
You loved to see our happiness
When we were reappearing there again
