

Joanna Carlson, Belong To Me

she walks in and closes the door shuts the world out of sight for another lonely night and she cries as she kneels on the floor for this empty room and this solitary life but heaven is hearing and sharing each tear and i know the father is near he's saying

you can belong to me
i'll cherish you, treasure you, love you completely someday you'll finally see how precious you are in my eyes you've never been out of my sight i love you for all of your life

a little boy lies on his bed wonderin where daddy's gone and did he do something wrong and he hides all the fears in his head as he tries to be strong but he feels so alone and heaven is hearing and sharing each tear

you can belong to me
i love you for all of your life
you can belong to me
