

Jodi Explodi, Mary Nason

All my strength is just not enough, if I push this hard,
I can see spots; Mary Nason, I cannot get to you.
I've taken all of my vitamins and your sage is burning in my hands,
oh no, shit I forget and it will not do.

On our way tonight, on our way to you; no batteries for flash, just got the moonlight. I've never swooned for anyone, not even the dark electric ones, but when we get to you tonight
I think I just might.

all my strength is just not enough, if I push this hard,
I can see spots; Mary Nason, I cannot get to you.
I've taken all of my vitamins and your sage is burning in my hands,
oh no, shit I forget and it will not do.

In the dark I'll reach, this town's too old to teach,
but when the wind picks and the moon's just right I learn my lessons well.
I've never had knees like gelatin, or been a sweat-smelly mess with a vomit grin, but tonight I've committed myself to give it hell...

Machines I cannot use, and bloodred muddy shoes, show that work has been in vain and I'm gonna lose but I'd never give up for anyone, not even the dark electric ones, and when they yell at me to stop it just makes me START IT ALL OVER AGAIN!!

all my strength is just not enough, if I push this hard,
I can see spots; Mary Nason, I cannot get to you.
I've taken all of my vitamins and your sage is burning in my hands,
oh no, shit I forget and it will not do.
