Joe Henry, Lock & Key

Holy cow, look what you've done You've got me now so I can't speak; I wonder how you turned out the stars I hear your laugh Like falling railway cars, Far and away, peaking through the bars Safe behind your own lock and key

--safe for now from me

God only knows how I love you But God and his ghost And his roadhouse crew Ran me out of town on a silver rail Free at last and begging him for jail
