Joe Jackson, Stranger Than Fiction

Stranger Than Fiction Joe Jackson Please mister can't you help me try to find my baby's house It's three in the morning in the pouring rain I can't find the house and i forgot the number But I gotta give her these roses to relieve her pain Don't laugh . . . just tell me you've been there before So we fight but we fight every evening And I tell you every morning I just love her more And life goes on . . . filled with disasters and friction And life can be strange But love can be stranger than fiction Only love can be stranger than fiction Excuse me operator . . . tell me what time it is Me and my lover been in bed all day I think I strained a muscle I didn't know I had And tell me what day it is anyway Don't laugh . . . just tell me you hear what I say I love her so much I don't even know what planet I'm on Love her so much I wish she'd just go away And life goes on . . . filled with bizarre contradictions And life can be strange But love can be stranger than fiction Only love can be stranger than fiction I know that sometimes love goes But sometimes it comes back to getcha And when love grows It grows like a flower or grows like a tumor Love shows that God has a sense of humor Life goes on . . . ever immune to prediction And life can be strange But love can be stranger than fiction Only love can be stranger than fiction
