

Joe Menzies, Making You Really Mad

You pride yourself on mental health
And I pride myself on making you really mad
When first we met, your patience test
Your buttons pressed
I'm still making you really mad

Then you've been
Allow with me
The chance to be
I promise you, I've always knew
You'd ask me to, be making you really mad
Be making you really mad
Be making you really mad

On my own
If I'd have known
The time I phoned
By making you really mad
The line was crossed
And your patience lost
But at what cost
Through making you really mad

This has been so hard for me, what I believe
I've tried, we tried to rectify
The last time I was making you really mad
