

Joe Purdy, I've Been To Holland

I walk this brick road ignoring the busload the sleepers are down for the count I'll never forget on the day that we met last night when we painted the town we screamed and we ran, streets of old amsterdam looking for payphones to call but none of our loved ones would quite understand sometimes we just live for the fall

And I've been to Holland and I've been to New York and I've seen the Golden Gate Bridge and I've done the things my parents have dreamed but i aint never seen nothing like this

She came to LA from the red Georgia clay and i loved her right from the start and she took my eye like a thief in the night i know shes stolen my heart she knows that i love her she knows that i miss her i wish she was standing right here at the end of each day i still lay down and pray just one chance to see her again

And I've been to Holland and I've been to new york
and I've seen the Golden Gate Bridge
and I've done the things my parents have dreamed but i aint never seen nothing like this

I look to my right as a aman on a bike says his sons been riding two days and if i missed you more i would head for the door but i cant find the door anyways I dont the language nor of the anguish that causes me to ask twice I dont knwo much but that I love the dutch cuz you dont have to try and be nice

And i've nbeen to Holland and I've been to new york and I've seen the Golden Gate Bridge
and I've done the things my parents have dreamed but i aint never seen nothing like this
