

John Cale, Overture

God knows how long she was waiting on the mountain, staring at the river, watching all her dreams
It was a marriage made in heaven, meant for each other, natural born lovers want to sing each other
There was static on the juke box and murder on their minds, money on the table, there were [walls