John D. Loudermilk, Two Strangers in Love

Looks are deceiving words are too so what can two strangers in love do Both on the rebound both on the mend so where do two strangers in love begin Both are in love though they've just met but both are too cautious to show it yet Smiles are deceiving kisses are too so what can two strangers in love do Both need a lover need a sweetheart but where do two strangers in love start Both over anxious to forget their past But both afraid to fall for fear this too won't last