John Denver, Daddy, What

This song was first released on the All Aboard! album. It is the only album it has been released on.

Daddy, what's a train? Is it something I can ride? Does it carry lots of grown-up folks and little kids inside? Is it bigger than our house? Well how can I explain When my little boy and girl ask me Daddy, what's a train?'

When I was just a boy and living by the track Us kids would gather up the coal in big 'ole gunnysacks Then we heard the warning sound as the train pulled into view The engineer would smile and wave as she went rolling through

She blew so loud and clear, we had to cover up our ears And we counted cars just as high as we could go I can almost hear the steam those big old drivers scream A sound my little kids will never know

Daddy, what's a train? Is it something I can ride? Does it carry lots of grown-up folks and little kids inside? Is it bigger than our house? Well how can I explain When my little boy and girl ask me Daddy, what's a train?'

I guess the times have changed, kids are different now Cause some don't even seem to know that milk comes from a cow My little boy can tell the names of all the baseball stars I remember how we memorized the names on railroad cars

The Wabash and the TP, Lackawanna, the IC The Nichel-Plate and the good old Santa Fe Just names out of the past, I guess they're fading fast Every time I hear my little boy say

Daddy, what's a train? Is it something I can ride? Does it carry lots of grown-up folks and little kids inside? Is it bigger than our house? Well how can I explain When my little boy and girl ask me Daddy, what's a train?'

We climbed into the car, drove down into town Right up to the depot house, but no one was around We searched the yard together for something I could show But I knew there hadn't been a train for a dozen years or so

All the things I did when I was just a kid How far away those memories appear I guess it's plain to see they still mean a lot to me 'Cause my ambition was to be an engineer

Daddy, what's a train? Is it something I can ride? Does it carry lots of grown-up folks and little kids inside? Is it bigger than our house? Well how can I explain When my little boy and girl ask me Daddy, what's a train?'
