

John Entwistle, When You See The Light

Walk across the flaming sand where everyone must go
Seek the cradle of the mountains where winds of wisdom blow
Cast a starward eye observe the heavens as they dance
At the crossroads this could be your chance
Will you hide your eyes
Or will you follow
When you see the light
In your search for justice do you look inside yourself
Do you really want to know the truth
Will you hide your eyes
Or will you follow
When you see the light
When you ask the question will you hear the answer
While your heart is screaming in the night
In the darkest hour you will find the strength
When you see the light.