John Foxx, Miles Away

Miles away

I'm walking in like someone else again

Miles away

I'm watching summer through an English rain

And I'm a new man when I walk away

It's crazy Shaking the daze from my head again

I know I must be miles away

Miles away

Miles away

Miles away

Miles away

I reassemble on the morning train

I try to say

My voice just tumbles on a long delay

And there's a new man at the edge of me

It's crazy

Making new plans for the rest of me

I'm looking back from miles away

Miles away

Miles away

Miles away

All the same

We talk on telephones across the haze

Miles away

The planes go glinting on their vapour trails

And I'm a new man when I walk away

It's crazy

Turning my head to the shine again

I'm waking up from miles away

Miles away

Miles away

Miles away
