John Kay, Bold Marauder

Words and music by Richard Farina

And it's hi ho hey, I am a bold marauder And it's hi ho hey, I am the white destroyer For I will show you silver and gold, and I will bring you treasure I will wave a widowing flag, and I will be your lover And I will show you grotto and cave and sacrificial alter And I will show you blood on the stone and I will be your mentor And night will be our darling and fear will be our name

And it's hi ho hey, I am the bold marauder And it's hi ho hey, I am the white destroyer For I will take you out by the hand and lead you to the hunter And I will show you thunder and steel and I will be your teacher And we will dress in helmet and sword and dip our tongues in slaughter And we will sing a warrior's song and lift the praise of murder And Christ will be our darling and fear will be our name

And it's hi ho hey, I am the bold marauder And it's hi ho hey, I am the white destroyer For I will sour the winds on high and I will soil the river And I will burn the grain in the field and I will be your mother And I will go to ravage and kill and will go to plunder And I will take a fury to wife and I will be your mother And death will be our darling and fear will be our name

M. Witmark & amp; amp; Sons (ASCAP)