

Jon Anderson, Deborah

I read your letter, I got it just the other day
You seem so happy, so funny how time melts away
It's such a pleasure to see you growing
And how you're sending your love through the air today

I think of heaven each time I see you walking there
And as your walking I think of children everywhere
It's in your starsign,
I can't believe it's so good to care

Through enchantment, into sunlight, angels touch your eyes
Your highness
Electric
So surprise

Is this your first life? It seems as though you have lived before
You keep me hold on, you have a heart like an open door
You sing so sweetly, my love adores you
She does, she's thinking of you right now
I know

The summer's coming, I'll keep in touch so you're not alone
Then, like a swallow, you'll fly away like birds have flown
So let me tell you how muc I love you
I make the songbirds sing for you again

Well now it's goodnight
Sweet angel, read this letter well
