Jon Anderson, Island Of Life

She sees me, she understands She helps, with all of my fears When we stand, together for life Who will hold, a child in her arms

She reaches out, so many friends Who seek, to lift this world When we stand, together for life She will hold, a child in her arms

Without woman, earth would fade and die Without woman, who am I Who am I, on this island of faith Who am I, on this island of life You are the sea You are the sky You are the ocean I am the earth I am the island Of your love

She listens, she understands For those, searching for truth We will stand, together for life We will hold, a child in our arms

Without woman, earth would fade and die Without woman, who am I Who am I, on this island of faith Who am I, on this island of life You are the sea You are the sky You are the ocean I am the earth I am the island Of your love

She sees me, she understands She helps, with all of my fears When we stand, together for life She will hold, a child in her arms

Without woman, earth would fade and die Without woman, who am I Who am I, on this island of faith Who am I, on this island of life You are the sea You are the sky You are the ocean I am the earth I am the island Of your love
