

Jonatha Brooke, No Better

If you could take shake back a thousand tears
You could take back the crosses in your fingers
You would know no better, better, better than me
We were meant to be together
Spinning freely, you could collide
And lesser free and only subtle
And the gift of union, crossbreath in this loveless life
Cause you could stay now
Cause we were meant to be together
And I still see your face
And I still wear that ring
And I will not lie
Its the hardest thing
I still love you
You dont want me
You dont want me
You dont want me
Bless me father, for I am not myself
Kiss me, my love, the right way
Cause youre all that glitters, glitters, glitters to my shame
We were meant to be together
Cause I still see your face
And I still hold that flame
And I will not lie
In that hopeless hour
I still love you
We were meant to be together
Meant to be together
Someday, someday, someday, someday...
