

Joseph Arthur, Disposable

You're loving me
Now I'll never see your face again
You never knew you were my only friend
Now you've just become disposable

You needed love
Don't you know that love and lust can't mix
Eventually I saw through your tricks
And were you get your fix off of other people's souls

We were so young
Out of control
I bought the dream the one you stole
So let's not pretend we're good
No let's not pretend we're good

I gotta go
And I won't come back this way again
I guess your disguise just got too thin
And now I can see exactly who you are

I hope for you
Eventually you'll learn to follow through
But when you do you won't be who I knew
Back when we threw ourselves off of every single ledge

We were so young
Out of control
I bought the dream the one you stole
So let's not pretend we're good
No let's not pretend we're good

We were so young
Out of control
I bought the dream the one you stole
So let's not pretend we're good
No let's not pretend we're good

We were so young
Out of control
I bought the dream the one you stole
So let's not pretend we're good
No let's not pretend we're good
