

Josh Gracin, Endless Helpless Hoping

Let me understate, how I adore, how I admire and more
And walk a hole in the floor
Like a fast freight train, screaming through the dark
Making a penny in my heart
And that's just where it starts

My lonely nights turn to days
My lonely days turn to how my life is going
Endless, helpless hoping
I can dream and I can believe
But, you're the only one who can heal
This heart that's broken
Endless, helpless, hoping

All the words that I write just don't impress
They don't leave my desk, like me it's a mess
I try to tell you, but you tell me that You're my friend, how could I let that end
So I just let you love him

My lonely nights turn to days
My lonely days turn to how my life is going
Endless, helpless hoping
I can dream and I can believe
But you're the only one who can heal
This heart that's broken
Endless, helpless, hoping

Now I know how a widow
Staring at the sea feels
Waiting for a ship to come home
Waiting there alone

My lonely nights turn to days
My lonely days turn to how my life is going
Endless, helpless hoping
I can dream and I can believe
But you're the only one who can heal
This heart that's broken
Endless, helpless, hoping

Hoping, hoping, hoping