

Josh Kelley, Here Again

lazy day, spring is here again if he never gets to see the open road fade away
the seasons always fade for the parts of comfort he will always go and in the warmth of her arms he will always know and he said,

if i ever see the day they take my love away then the lights will go and i will be so lonely for now, we can begin to take the right road and the lights will know that this will never fade for the moment is engraved for the years, spring is here again she may never get to see the open road

fade away
the memories always fade for the price of nothing she will always know and in the warmth of his arms she is always home and she said,

if i ever see the day they take my love away
then the lights will go and i will be so lonely
for now, we can begin to take the right road
and the lights will know that this will never fade
for the moment is engraved

lazy day, the spring is here again