Judas Priest, Sands of Time

The winds of change are everywhere And all the world must be aware There's nowhere left for man to go The sands of time are running low These visions fall before my face I see the end of human's race These feelings rise inside my soul And everything is out of control The winds of change Are in the air The winds of change Are everywhere