

Jude Harrison, Higher ground

I've been crawling
To the mountains
Skinned my knees with blood and hope
If I stayed standing
I'd be drowning
The rising waters made me choke
As I am getting nearer
My mission is coming clear
I know this road
Never seen it before
I know what lies behind unopened doors
I saw the signs from the distant shore
That I couldn't ignore...
I'm heading for higher ground, yeah
I left everyone behind me
I took everything I know
Half way up and I'm still climbing
Still a million miles to go
The water is drawing nearer
As everything disappears
I know this road
Never seen it before
I know what lies behind unopened doors
I saw the signs from the distant shore
That I couldn't ignore...
I'm heading for higher ground
And my foot slips
But I don't quit
And my hand grips the rock
Something pulls deep
From within me
Till I get there, I won't stop
I know this road
Never seen it before
I know what lies behind unopened doors
I saw the signs from the distant shore
That I couldn't ignore
I know this road
Never seen it before
I know what lies behind unopened doors
I saw the signs from the distant shore
That I couldn't ignore
I'm heading for higher, higher ground
Way up here, the air is thin
Feels like I could go so far
