

Judie Tzuke, New Friends Again

New friends again

With all your questions answered you're into hard thinking again
And with all your loves uncared for you're making new friends again
That's another way of saying you change your friends again.

I can see you changing, you're thinking time won't stand still
And without your promised warning you're making new friends again.
That's another way of saying you change your friends again.

I know that you are making a play for long lost freedom
I see that you are leaving and now I see the reason.
Now you're making new friends again.

With all your questions answered you're learning 'bout smart living again
And all your loves are worried 'cos you're making new friends again.