

Judie Tzuke, Southern Smiles

When I go down take the trail to southern smiles
All the way I hear them call
Well there'll be nightrunners and there'll be sunhunters

There where the day burns into your very sight
Don't say no
You just might
'Cos there'll be nightrunners and there'll be sunhunters

Well I could be somewhere else
(I'd rather stay here)
Oh I should be somewhere else
There's something there holds my heart
It's caught in the backstreets it's calling for more

Well there'll be nightrunners and there'll be sunhunters

So here I go on the way to southern smiles
Racing light till darkness falls
To find nightrunners and there'll be sunhunters

Well I could be somewhere else
(I'd rather stay there)
Oh I should be somewhere else
There's something there holds my heart
It's caught in the backstreets it's calling for more

Nightrunners, sunhunters
