Jughead's Revenge, Eliminator

As I put my gun to the head of God Thoughts of all the things I should have done Is the mirror of life always what you claim Are you looking at a cause or a blame Because in this place you gotta know Right and wrong are you ideas of the old Fallen angels rule the city of empty souls Did you see it when the time was just right In a lifetime of years too late The word that longed in your sacred heart Spray painted on Heaven's gate You turned to see if I was standing there I'd face myself if I could only dare Content is hard but when you giver it up A little bit more to have to do with luck To have to say To take it back and put it away To come another day You were stuck in a world of the endless stripe Shining like the fuse of the sun It's amazing how some of us get through life Refusing to be part of the phoneysome Raining on parades of the pretentious and cold With the mind of a child and a heart made of gold I try to be good but when they rattle the cage our heads are dead so it's all the same To have to say We were really happy for once in our lives To say we have survived To take our lives by the throat And to look inside To ignore is just to lie
