

Julia Cole, Better Liar

I'm just being honest, man
You made me a promise and
Swore that I'm your everything
Making up forever plans
Then you leave me wondering
Where you been, 2AM
Coming in drunk again blaming working late
If you were being honest man
You would tell me your two hands have been
On somebody's body where they shouldn't have been
You're looking as guilty as a wanted man
Wanted man
I'm just being honest man

You should be a better liar
Or find someone dumber who will buy your
Manipulation, your narcissism
Who'll let you play all the games I didn't
If you were just a little brighter
I'd be blinded by your gaslighter
But, boy, the truth is
If you're too stupid
To tell the truth then
You should be a better liar

If you were an honest man
Might have lasted longer than
A blink of an eye, a lightning flash in the pan
I'm already over you
Yeah, this was overdue
Need you gone to move on a little closer to
A real honest man
Treat me like I want it man
Who I can look in the eye and believe
So when you leave
I'll be relieved
But truthfully

You should be a better liar
Or find someone dumber who will buy your
Manipulation, your narcissism
Who'll let you play all the games I didn't
If you were just a little brighter
I'd be blinded by your gaslighter
But, boy, the truth is
If you're too stupid
To tell the truth then
You should be a better liar
You should be a better liar

Oh, you should be a better liar
You should be a better liar
Or find someone dumber who will buy your
Manipulation, your narcissism
Who'll let you play all the games I didn't
If you were a little brighter
I'd be blinded by your gaslighter
But boy the truth is
If you're too stupid
To tell the truth then
You should be a better liar
You should be a better liar
You should be a better liar
