

Julia Marcell, Side effects of growing up

the world is ending
the world has come to an end
'cause they have written all the songs and there is not much left for me to sing all that insanity oh yeah I figured that out you'd never want to be perceived as smart unless that's what you're all about girl who knows eveyrthing watch she looks our way and all the things you want to tell her don't bother saying girl who tried everything not as fun as it seems I know that no one understands you but you've got to know we have the same old dreams I feel so stupid sorry for things I didn't do I should have told you then that I just couldn't bare to go against the world I'm almost married now just like I said I would I barely think of good old days but i still sometimes think of you daddy
why didn't you say that it's never getting easy all along the way
you knew so much more now everything you go through hits you harder than before and you don't get to be who you wanna be in the first place 'cause it changes all the time and nothing shows up magically no princess
no white horses and all that stuff and if you mess up there is no one around to clean it up for you
the world is ending
the world has come to an end
and there is not much left for me to sing
