

Julia Nunes, Roles Reversed

my ear can't hold a pencil and my mind can't keep a thought and my arms aren't near strong enough to hold the shit I got but stop feeling sorry for me that's great you got your sanity but apologies are not what I need

I'm going out
I'm going out
to get my mind off you I'll have a drink or two

I know this might be rough on you don't worry I've been in your shoes we've only got a friend to lose this sucks, I think you know it too the thrill of the chase caught up with me they paid me back karmically either I can't stand them or they don't want me what do you think it means

I'm going out
I'm going out
to get my mind off you
I'll have a drink or two cross my heart cross my eyes cross my fingers hope to die bury me with the friends I've lost they say that pain is the cost of love (no one said this would be easy)

I knew it had to happen soon just sucks it had to be with you the songs that I once sang for you I still sing them though the meaning's new roles reversed and then press play can't think of any thing to say but how many times can one heart break (how many pictures did we take)

I'm going out
I'm going out
to get my mind off you
I'll have a drink or two

I used these chords once before an unfinished love song cause I adored a boy but not any more
