

Juliette And The Licks, I Am My Father's Daughter

I felt you watching me
Eyes dripping like a drink
Past the conversation
That fell from my lips

There's always a wordless sound
That goes spinning wide and round
Like the second coming
Which side are you on

I'll give you my admission
I'll give you eyes of gold
When is it the right time
To never do what you're told

And so the story goes
Don't ever regret your past
Why is it looking back
I found my way home

Even when it's for free it's never enough
And i know i gave it all to you
So you get what you want it's never enough
Enough, enough, enough

I am my father's daughter
You'll never break me down
I fell so hard when I hit that floor
Wearing my death veil my eyes shut so tight
They've got me surrounded
You know you're out for the night

I'll give you my admission
I'll give you eyes of gold
When is it the right time
To never do what you're told

And so the story goes
Don't ever regret your past
Why is it looking back
I found my way home

Even when it's for free it's never enough
And i know i gave it all to you
And you get what you want it's never enough
And I know I believed in you
Even when you bleed it's never enough
And I know I gave it to you
So you get what you want it's never enough
And I know I believed in you

It's all right lay me down again
All night there's much more I can make of it

Even when it's for free it's never enough
And i know i gave it all to you
And you get what you want it's never enough
And I know I believed in you

Even when you bleed it's never enough
And I know I gave it to you
I gave it to you
So you got to believe, it's never enough
And I know I want it to you

You'll break me down...
I'm tired of losing
I am my father's daughter
